

September 2006

Looking for the right medical expert

MacBeal describes itself as 'a matchmaking, web-based marketing tool that allows personal injury lawyers to find the right medical experts'. It sounds like yet another online directory but its search facilities not only allow candidates to be located by postcode but also provides a CV, terms & conditions and sample reports for all listed experts.

Registered users can even exchange documents with doctors using a secure electronic delivery system and it has one of the clearest user guide tutorials we have ever seen.

www.legaltechnology.com